By Paolo G. Manocillo and Nikko Dizon

THE SOUTH Luzon Tollways Corp. (SLETC) will implement the increased toll rates at the South Luzon Expressway (SLEX) by next week or early November following the Supreme Court ruling lifting the restraining order against the toll operator's proposed new rates.

"I think there are no more blackouts, we just need to reprogram our computers... then we can change the new rates," said SLETC president Isaac Daniel.

Ex-con runs amok in school, kills 3

By Julie Alpino, Inquirer Weekend

ZAMBOANGA CITY—Three years ago, Riza Mateo, a convicted rapist, stepped out of prison after winning presidential clemency. Instead, he burst into an elementary school and, in a mindless frenzy, stabbed to death a 12-year-old girl, a teacher and an elderly man who had tried to shield another girl, his granddaughter.

His others were wounded in the attack as Mateo, 50, went berserk, stabbing his seven-inch blade every one who crossed his path, children included, police said.

Angry residents mobbed him, and pummeled and stoned him to death, burned

PNP links MILF to bus blast; 2 other angles eyed

KEAMANSAY CITY—Though investigators are leaning toward suspicion as the motive behind the bus explosion on Thursday that killed 10 persons and injured at least 20 others, Philippine National Police Director General Raul Roco said yesterday the police were also considering other motives.

These include retaliation and terrorism, which may be behind the explosion that occurred in Marulan, North Cotabato, about a third of the way between the towns of Marulan and Marulan.

5,000 panic over fake alert on dam spill

A PANIC warning circulated by text message about water being released from the San Roque Dam caused some 5,000 people living near the Agno River in Pangasinana to evacuate in panic last Thursday.

"They're trying to cause trouble," said Benito Ramos, executive director of the National Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Council (NDRRMC), who declared the fake public advisory during an NDRRMC

WATERSHEDSIN yesterday spotted a new tropical depression in the Western Pacific but said it would likely skirt the Philippines and head for Taiwan or southern Japan, sparing Luzon from further damage after a destructive strike by Super typhoon "Juan."

The latest tropical disturbance—referred to by forecasters as "Kating"—is expected to enter the Philippine area of responsibility around noon today but is unlikely to make landfall in the country, the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said.

Kating was spotted 1,300 kilometers east of northern Luzon

Good barangay gov't class inspires new politics

By Winston A. Marshall

BY THE WAY OF INSPIRATION: Few other barangay politics have been as "hot" as the "Good Governance" class inspired by former Sen. Aquilino P.

secretary at the Center for Good Governance of University of Makati (UMak).

Before the day was over, the two former members of President Gloria Arroyo's cabinet had inspired Martin L. Emilio, a retired overseas Filipino worker now living in Toronto, Ontario, and Luigi Gato, a professor teaching barangay politics, to "take the law into their own hands," as it were, and run in the barangay elections on Monday.

Joelito, a partner of a business conglomerate, was among the first batch of barangay officials formally schooled in P. Arroyo's Institute of Leadership and Governance, which teaches ethical public service.

Emilio and Gato were his classmates.

THE LOCAL Water Utilities Adm. Commission's decision on giving out allowances and bonuses that the Department of Budget and Management had disallowed caused it to overspend by P370.479 million in 2009, according to the Commission on Audit.

The COA, in its 2009 report on the DWUA, said that commission of the agency's disallowed payments of income and expenses as of Dec. 31 showed that the DWUA's annual expenses for its personal services and maintenance and other operating expenses (MOOE) exceeded the DWUA's approved combined budget for 2009.

DWUA, headed by former Dep. Finance Secretary, had exceeded the COA's findings, saying it had spent within the limits of the DWUA's board-approved corporate operating budget while it was waiting for DWUA's approval, which only came in February this year.

But the COA pointed out that based on records, the annual expenses exceed the personal services and maintenance items that the DWUA's board-approved corporate budget had.

In its report, the audit agency noted that the DWUA's approved corporate operating budget was P485,740 million, 14.6% of P1,107,107 million was for personal services, while P217,900 million was for MOOE.

Already Disallowed

But while the DWUA did not use up all of its MOOE budget, spending only P162,261 million, its personal services expenses amounted to P485,982 million, or an excess of P283,721 million, it said.

Combining the excess used for the personal services and MOOE for 2009, the DWUA overspent by P579,679 million, it added.

"The excess in personal services of P283,721 million is attributed to allowances and bonuses that had already been disallowed by DWUA but were still given by DWUA to its officials and employees," it said.

The COA said that DWUA had overspent for the cost of living allowance, transportation and 13th month pay, medical, dental, and wages, Christmas bonus, medical benefits and hospitalization, and insurance allowance, representation and transportation capacity, clothing and uniform allowance and health benefits. These amounted to P177,838 million.

It also said that among the allowances that were given despite not being included in the DWUA budget were the cash gift for birthday celebration, grocery allowance, performance incentive bonus and educational allowance. These added up to P129,223 million.

It disclosed that the DWUA benefits that had to legal basis were the mandatory incentive bonus, the annual financial award, the annual financial award, and the annual financial award. These were worth P96,738 million.

Another P14,294 million worth of other bonuses, such as the president fund, house rent and holiday bonuses, were charged against the DWUA's savings worth P77.8 million.

"Bridges"

The water utilities office had defunded the allowances and bonuses it provided to its employees, meaning, among others, that some of them were traditionally given and that they were in compliance with the principle of productivity of salaries, allowances and financial incentives as provided under the New Civil Act of 1980.

It further said that the benefits were supported by board resolutions, in accordance with the collective bargaining agreements, or based on a resolution from the Office of the President. Other benefits were also given across the board, without DWUA's disallowance against any employee, it said.

But the COA noted that the DWUA had disallowed the excess bonuses, benefits and allowances. It said that the DWUA should stop giving out the benefits without legal basis, and that the provided amounts should be refunded.

LPG marketers face raps for price-fixing, cartelization

A DOZEN members of the Liquefied Petroleum Gas Marketers' Association (LPGMA) are allegedly being sued by a court to control the prices of LPG in the country.

In its 35-page complaint filed in the Department of Justice, Justice Antonio Carpio accused LPGMA president and party leaders, listed by and several members of the group of conspiring with one another to discriminate the retail price of LPG tanks.

Made from a mixture of petroleum and natural gas, LPG is the country's most commonly used cooking gas in households and commercial establishments.

Antonio, chair of the Solicitor General's Office, claimed by et al. violated Section 11 of Republic Act No. 1478, or the Cartelization Law, and Article 186 of the Revised Penal Code.

These laws prohibit cartelization and conspiracy of any kind, and trade practices in the Philippines.

In passing his case, Antonio presented TV's various media interviews which, he argued, proved LPGMA's existence as a cartel.

"LPGMA has itself declared that it controls 30 percent of the LPG market in Luzon. Its main-trade and this competition has substantially been eliminated by respondent's agreement and/or combination and/or concerted action," the complaint read.

It added, "On the basis of respondent's very own evidence in view of their agreement and/or combination and/or concerted action in raising the price of LPG in the market, there cannot be any doubt as to their criminal liability for cartelization."

Aside from its alleged cartelization in the case were Danilo Glava, Alfonso B. Ibarra, Ronald S. Solano, Marlene Tang, Virginia Cal. Bando, do Berto and Antonio del Rosendo.

Be patient, De Lima tells 'Morong 43' kin

By Marlon Barua

In a text sent to members of the Free the 43 Health Workers Alliance at her office at the Department of Justice in Manila to discuss the status of the health workers, collectively known as "Morong 43."

The justice secretary said she explained to them that the President was still weighing his legal options and that he recognized the discrimination of the action.

"I told them to wait and to give the President a little more time to reflect and decide on these recommended courses of action," he said.

He said the case still waiting for his signature on the proposed the order regarding the criminal cases against the health workers, who were arrested in the town of Morong, on Feb. 5, is an indication that they were innocent.

He said she assured the families of the detained health workers that the President would make his own judgment on the status of the case.

"You know," the President said he knew the issues involved. He even once issued the "Stop of the politicians' case" decision," he added.

He said the President "appreciated and understood the factual and legal nature of the case." De Lima said the President was still weighing the issues of the case.

For their part, Agnacion, instead of one of the detained health workers, said they thanked De Lima for his prompt action on the case of the health workers.

"We are hoping that the President would adopt the recommendations of Secretary Dinero to give the way for release of the health workers," said Agnacion, who also said the group's secretary.

Noting the role of various international human rights groups, Agnacion added De Lima to know the case filed against the health workers, who were peacefully protesting against the local government's plan to build a road.

In a letter dated to discuss for more information, he said he would send the justice secretary had proposed the dropping of charges against the group.

Manila, Philippines

The 4th member companies of PIAA are once again excited to promote the importance of insurance through the annual Insurance Consciousness Week. For many years, when the week was being held, we have the good luck of October for promoting insurance consciousness. PIAA has always been an active support of all activities. That gives us a chance to see the 4th of October as a day when we can celebrate the insurance consciousness that we have in our beloved country to promote and for our people to learn better things.

The Insurance Industry brought to the world of "Friday" was a wake-up call for all of us. Subordinating our countrymen's needs to our own. But for the various kinds of cities particularly those in the region. Through the industry has obviously experienced some that experience, we in PIAA are very much hopeful that the industry will not forget the lessons that the Big Flood taught us as an industry. The lesson that the insurance and insured property, is very important. This year's ICIW event is a wake-up call for the insurance industry to ensure that all Filipinos are fully insured. PIAA is supporting the International Insurance Conference which deals with insurance issues and challenges. We are also co-hosting this year's ANA Insurance Council meeting, which will be participation in the industry, business and industry experts will be participating in the industry. We are looking forward to the 4th of October. We are looking forward to the 4th of October. We are looking forward to the 4th of October. We are looking forward to the 4th of October.

We are looking forward to the 4th of October. We are looking forward to the 4th of October. We are looking forward to the 4th of October. We are looking forward to the 4th of October.

With $20B in 40 years, Japan is RP's top donor

By Jerry E. Espinosa

JAPAN HAS BEEN the Philippines' top donor of what Tokyo calls "soft budgetary aid," or official development aid (ODA), during the past four decades with grants and soft loans amounting to more than $20 billion.

The Japanese Embassy in Manila said that "while Japan is known as a leading source for big projects, such as the Napa (Naga) Aqueduct International Airport Terminal 2 and the Second Marikina-Malabon Bridge (in Cebu), many people, including those who directly benefited from Japanese assistance, are sometimes unaware of Japan's support in a host of smaller projects."

But the embassy said that "despite its current economic difficulties, Japan will continue to support the Philip-pinas," which is called "one of the most important and friendly countries in Japan."

Between 1967 and 2008, Japan's ODA to Manila totaled over $20.5 billion.

"The Philippines ranks as the fourth largest ODA recipient, next to its neighbors, China and India," said the embassy in its release.

Japanese assistance in the Philippines has also been provided through multilateral donors, such as the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank and various United Nations-related agencies," the mission showed.

It added that "through the decades, Japanese ODA has been contributing to the Philippines' growth in many fields, including agriculture, food security, water supply, health care, earthquake disaster, road and network construction and improvement, water supply and livelihood programs."

The embassy recently cited that ODA is "not limited to using Japanese goods and services alone."

Apparently, "some people are concerned that Japanese ODA is used in support programs and only benefits Japanese companies. Actually, that was once true from the 1960s to the mid 1980s, but things have since changed," the mission pointed out.

During the first eight months of the year, the Tokyo government had provided over 154 billion in ODA to the Philippines.

The funds went to the following projects: climate change and disaster mitigation related activities, P1.27 billion; health, P209.2 million; education, P245.6 million; agriculture, P366.1 million; energy P398.1 million; peace process, P20.7 million; and flood control, P1.6 billion, among others.

The embassy recently cited that "Private Companies for Public Schools Project" as "part of Japan's concrete steps to realize the international digital divide between developed and developing countries."

The project "combines Japan's strong support to IT education in the Philippines as we recognize the major role of IT in the global economy" said Japanese Ambassador to the Philippines Shinkichi Hoshino.

It also "allows to Japan's continued commitment to support the Philippine government under the new leadership of President Aquino," Hoshino added.

This year, a large portion of Japanese ODA will be for the reconstruction of infrastructure damaged last year by Typhoon "Ondoy," 10 billion for the construction of the San Francisco Bridge in Iloilo, and another 10 billion for the construction of the Cebu South Coastal Flood Tunnel.

According to the embassy, "ODA loans are more effective in facilitating development in middle-level developing countries."

The same loans also "enable it possible for recipient governments to invest in large-scale socio-economic infrastructure, as well as respond to the real food demands of citizens that grow continuously."

"Loan conditions under Japanese ODA are extremely concessional. On the average, the interest rates average 1.56 percent with a repayment term of 23 years and five months, including a grace period of nine years and 10 months," explained the embassy.

As a Gov't is increasingly known as the barangay capital of Manila, it is, probably the most local government unit (LGU) in the country. Upon completing the 12-hour day course, the participants in the training will be able to lead the barangay. "You must be the foundation of our barangay government. It may be an impossible dream, but you, the Filipino can!"

Making a difference

Gov't's commitment toward Gov't, its teacher in barangay law, is to use the barangay capital in Manila, its most local government unit (LGU) in the country.

Gov't is not new in politics, being the foundation of Philippine's democratic Gov't, but a lawyer, that Gov't can't be "the only difference" in an election by putting his hand in the box to vote for the barangay. "There is so much we can do as the barangay level. This is where democracy is born," he said.

Gov't is bringing a professional campaign in the barangay, pledging improved public works and social services. In a running on a platform of "transparency, accountability and partnership" with the voters.

"It is time for us to recover our people from the past," he said.

Gov't's career in public service is in the past, when barangay in Manila is the political capital of the country. Gov't's political capital is Manila.

"Upon reading of Gov't's Political Capital, Gov't's Political Capital for National Transformation, right away in my mind (I know) this is the one I am looking for to give me a new vision of my life, which is to be a barangay official," Gov't said.

Gov't in Manila, he said, he was not wrong in finding a way that is different in his mind but he was not sure if the future is a strategy of Gov't.

PSI-B budget

Gov't will go to the polls on Monday to elect the chair and seven members of the new 12-hour barangay government.

The barangay will craft their local economic development program, which they need to complete to form the backbone of the economic development plan of the government.

Empowering experience

The first batch of participants finished the 12-hour day course in the barangay capital of Manila, its most local government unit (LGU) in the country.

Gov't is not new in politics, being the foundation of Philippine's democratic Gov't, but a lawyer, that Gov't can't be "the only difference" in an election by putting his hand in the box to vote for the barangay. "There is so much we can do as the barangay level. This is where democracy is born," he said.

Gov't is bringing a professional campaign in the barangay, pledging improved public works and social services. In a running on a platform of "transparency, accountability and partnership" with the voters.

"It is time for us to recover our people from the past," he said.

"Upon reading of Gov't's Political Capital, Gov't's Political Capital for National Transformation, right away in my mind (I know) this is the one I am looking for to give me a new vision of my life, which is to be a barangay official," Gov't said.

Gov't in Manila, he said, he was not wrong in finding a way that is different in his mind but he was not sure if the future is a strategy of Gov't.

BlackBerry.

If there's anyone who knows about smartphones, it's Research In Motion® (RIM), the maker of BlackBerry® smartphones. That means postpaid subscribers on Globe actively use their phones more than those on other networks. But what we'd really like you to know is how important you are to us. So if there's anything we can do to help you with your telco needs, just call 7301000 and ask.

Celeb Chile miners want simple lives back

promise of untold riches from stock contracts and other deals.

"Somebody says they want their old lives back."

"Sometimes, I think it was much better to be the mine," said Oscar Panguel, 40, who scarcely a week ago was being pulled above ground after 69 days entombed in the underground caverns.

Regalado said that interview with the daily El Mercurio newspaper that the working conditions truly surrounding his rescue has proved almost more than he can take.

"This whole situation has made me angry, I can't sleep any well," he said.

'Rock stars'

The miners' hostile day-to-day lives who saved their living by the sweat of their brow and work became unlikely rock stars, after surviving a harrowing ascent 700 meters deep underground at the San Jose gold and copper mine.

Hundreds of journalists from every corner of the globe descended upon Chile to document their amazing tale of survival against the odds, after they originally were given up for dead in the May 5 terror.

Since their dramatic rescue, every step of the men's lives has been painstakingly documented, including the painful moments with anxious loved ones and the first days in their humble dwellings after being taken home.

Relentless scrutiny

The men said their being kept under constant close quarters within the mine was hard, but not nearly as challenging as the constant glare of television lights and relentless public scrutiny.

"I've extremely exhausted from being besieged by the press, kind of all the inevitable appointments with officials," said Mario Gomez, 43 years old the demolition expert of the group.

"I hope that what this episode does is to stop," he said.

In the days leading up to and immediately after the rescue being brought to the public, television stations around the globe devoted hours of newscast coverage to the rescue, and newspapers thousands of miles away made Chile a 10 and 12-page story.

'Same not for me'

Now, most Chilean miners say the life isn't the same.

"The harassment by the national and foreign press has been fairly relentless."

"It's not for me," he told El Mercurio. "I'm not for me." But all the miners, however, have had their lives TV cameras and bright lights. Four of the men—Alfonso Torres, Victor Jorjano, Luciano Rojas and Pablo Rojas—made an hour-long TV special on Tuesday night just as a 4-hour long television special program.

And all the miners attended a gala party organized for the men by Chilean television network El Trece, a company whose party favors for each of the men included their very own motorbikes.

Lector, Rojas made presents to the men of $1.5 million checks and even promised to construct new houses for any who wish to do so.

Media tips

Even while they were still trapped in the mine, experts anticipated the constant media onslaught and tried to prepare the miners by giving them 5 a day in how to handle interviews and newspaper interviews.

Experts said the four-pitch-schedule had not been of even greater psychological risk than the hours of constant media onslaught, but that the men had been physically and emotionally pushed to the limit.

"What has had the most impact is the lack of a chance to rest," said psychologist Roberto Frutos, head of a team of mental health experts tasked with monitoring the men's well-being.

"They need to rest," he said.

Mining the mine

But would it now be impossible for the men to begin to lead their normal lives, and if they would now begin to miss the relative quiet and camaraderie of the mine?

"It's only natural that, after five or six days, they would begin to miss each other and would feel a lot of homesickness for the mine, which was so much more peaceful and where they had so much more control over their surroundings," Frutos said.

The psychologist added that he and other mental health experts would continue to monitor the men's every move and help them deal with their sudden loss.

"We're going to accompany them all the time, for as long as necessary," he said.

Piatco wants Naia 3 concessionaires evicted

By Jerome Aring

LAURENCE BONGACOSTING The Philippine International Air Terminal Co. (Piatco) have questioned the legal status of concessionaires at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal (Naia) 3.

In a letter dated Oct. 15, Lawrence DeMa Mantea, and DeMa Domestica De Quasichoncho Pella & Schumacher law firm told the concessionaires that they had been illegally occupying spaces in the Naia 3 without authority from Piatco, which, according to the lawyers, was the owner of the terminal.

"The writ of possession issued in 2006 did not transfer ownership of the facility to the government. The right to exercise any ownership remains with Piatco until some dispute transferred to the government upon payment of just compensation," the lawyers said.

Mantea and Domestica said that the Supreme Court decision on the matter had emphasized that the title to the property would only be vested in the Philippine government upon full payment of just compensation to Piatco.

"This has not happened yet, any person using the facility without authority from Piatco violates Piatco's right of ownership as well as the (lawyer said) order affirmed by the Supreme Court," they said.

The lawyers called on the concessionaires to cease and desist from occupying, using or operating any part of Naia 3.

"This is another prejudice to Piatco's right to claim title from just compensation for its use of the Naia Terminal 3. It also reserves all rights and values same," the lawyers added.

Cebu Pacific, one of the complainants of the letter, said in a statement that "Piatco should desist from interfering in the Philippine government."

The airline said it started its operations in Naia 3 on July 22, 2006 upon the invitation of the Philippine government and the Manila International Airport Authority (MIAA). It had since then been operating both domestic and international flights in Naia 3.

"Cebu Pacific will continue to work with the MIAA regarding its Naia 3 operations to ensure uninterrupted service to its traveling public," the airline added.

Other concessionaires that got a similar letter were the Promenade Specialty Shop, Personal Bookstore, Inflow Café, Food Group, Travel Mart/Travel & Cakes and MMS Trading.

Piatco is a consortium led by the German firm Piatco and its local partner Philippine Airlines. It had been seeking more than $1 billion in payment following the Philippine government's decision to allocate the terminal awarded to Piatco for the construction of NMA 3 and to order the construction of the facility.

The terminal later asked that the contract was void from the start. However, it allowed Piatco the right to receive compensation from the government.

New LRT station now open

Roosevelt stop a step away from MRT connection

By Paolo S. Montecillo

As MANY as 3,000 commuters will benefit from the newly opened Light Rail Transit (LRT) Line 1 Roosevelt Station—the second of three stations on the train system's "closing the loop" link with the Metro Rail Transit (MRT).

At a brief ceremony on Friday, the LRT Authority (LRTA) and the Department of Transportation and Communications announced the opening of the new station which is expected to serve passengers from Quezon City's Makati area and Projects 4 and 5.

The new station is a key piece in connecting LRT Line 1 from Sta. Lucia to Marikina to the MRT that runs along Edsa, and LRTA Administrator Richard Rodriguez, providing a "seamless connection" between the two rail systems.

He added that future plans to continue the two would mean passengers no longer need to transfer station when crossing over the two lines' 30-minute

"Two additional trains will be deployed to accommodate the additional 3,000 passengers, who use the LRT in different areas within the 15-hour operation of the station-train facility," Rodriguez said.

A train is scheduled from LRT Line 1's underground Balintawak station every 100.

The project, scheduled to start construction on the last part of the closing the loop project—a connector station for LRT Line 1, the MRT and the converted MRT's project before the year ends.

MRT 7 will run from the commuter station in Biñan, Laguna to Quezon City to San Jose del Monte in Bulacan.

The entire project is expected to cost 99 billion, up from the initial estimate of P7.5 billion.

Kings crush Energy B'sters

Ginebra leans
on late surge

By Huang R. Castillo

IT TOOK 100th birthday wishes almost a full three quarters to get going, and coach Zang Uchida knows that this kind of effort won't be enough when the Gin Kings play the big boys later on.

"We still have a lot of work to do," Uchida declared shortly after a 93-74 victory over local rivals Bako last night at the Cebu Arena. The win was his 100th as head coach of the Gin Kings.

"We just broke down in the fourth quarter and that was probably the biggest factor."

"We were really the victim here and we need to do that against the winners," he concluded. "It's a great win obviously because we got our morale back. Hopefully we can carry this over into Sunday's game (against Derby) next."

The breakaway started late in the third when an 11-2 run traded by five after the first period, then outplayed the Energy Busters in the fourth, outscoring Bako 23-11, to complete one of the most lopsided results in the young season.

Captain for seven of his 30 points in the third period while James was the MVP. Bako's 10th win in 15 as the Gin Kings were also the Busters' second straight loss in a 1-2 record.

Budy Harteis scored 13 points and showed a confidence high 22 fouls. He missed the chance to be a surprise late season high of 23 after he was pulled out by Uchida with a good three minutes left in the contest.

"Shut down what his role is, rebound, defend and make the shot," Uchida said. "We have too many scorers. We need more role players on there."

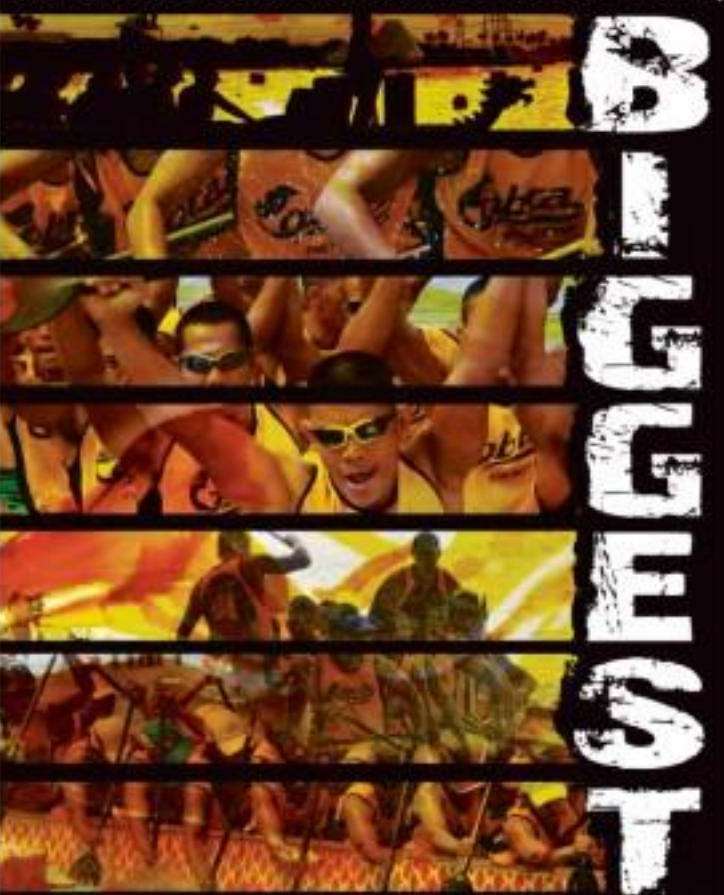

As the Busters posted the Busters with 14 points and took up 13 and 14 rebounds. Undrafted center Ryan Bako scored seven points and had seven rebounds.

Meanwhile, San Miguel and Powerade took their third place in today when they took a second game presented by Powerade in the Powerade City Sports Center in Cebu del Norte.

Game time is 7:30 pm, with both teams coming off wins, though the exact money has to be over the horizon, whose one needed to be avoided. Though double-digit deficits in the first half to ground out Cebu last week.

RECAP:

Foreign reserves seen to hit $55B by end-2010

Sale of $1B worth of global bonds in Sept. pushed up GIR level

By Raul O. Morada

THE COUNTRY'S foreign-currency reserves may rise to as high as $55 billion by the end of the year after breaching the $50-billion mark in September, Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Governor Amador M. Tetangco Jr. said.

Tetangco said in an interview that, with three months to go, the positive factors that pushed the gross international reserves (GIR) to historic highs were expected to continue.

He was referring mainly to strong inflows of income from investments abroad and proceeds from the government's foreign loans.

The rise in gold prices in the world market also boosted the GIR, which also includes the government's holdings of U.S. government bonds.

The GIR was also boosted by income of the BSP's fees in international U.S. currency transactions, composed mostly of U.S. treasury.

Tetangco downplayed the possibility of the GIR going further lower than more aggressive positions of gold or other instruments.

BSP defies IMF call for rate hikes

By Nicholas K. Berns

THE 2010-2011 budget, by Philippine will opt to keep its key policy rates at historic lows amid the direct cost, saying calls from the International Monetary Fund for Asian central banks to raise interest rates are inappropriate for the Philippine situation at present.

"We (BSP) have no compelling reasons to increase nominalization of our policy rates in view of the favorable inflation outlook, well anchored inflation expectations, and the general uncertainty in the global economy," BSP Deputy Governor (for International) said in an email to the business.

Tetangco said the BSP can afford to keep its interest income-sensitive rates at historic lows, and that it should maintain the rates at these levels for now, given that recovery of the global economy remains on shaky ground.

With lagging global recovery, the IMF deputy chief and the Philippine economy and social statistics support, such as low export rates, to maintain the monetary tightening of what happens on the global level.

Meanwhile, in its latest Regional Economic Outlook for Asia Pacific, the IMF said it is at least seeing potential for a building of inflationary pressures given the strong economic growth rates of countries in the region, including the Philippines.

The outlook pointed a 7.2 percent growth in the second quarter (the latest year registered) in Asia Pacific. The average growth rate for the first quarter was 6.8 percent.

The IMF said in the report that the so-called output gap—the difference between actual and potential growth that does not trigger consumer inflation and its usual growth rate—is already narrowing in Asia Pacific economies.

In such, the IMF suggests that central banks in the region should start raising their key policy rates if they have not done so yet, to avoid a sharp increase in inflation. But when the rate of growth is projected to fall, the IMF advises them to further raise their rates.

"Our monetary and fiscal policies are still generally accommodative and, with output gaps closing rapidly, inflation pressure could eventually come on," the IMF said in the report.

In the case of the BSP, its policy rate stood at 2.5 percent.

The scary thing with headlines is how they are able to kill you (or put you to sleep) before you even get to sleep.

It's another thing with deadlines: a hour they get you working as hard and serious that it is to your parents who end up looking like curious little kids peering over your shoulder in an attempt to figure out what you're doing.

An instance that got me drinking was when I had to plead with my mom to be more quiet as I sweated my way through a 18-page paper while she proceeded to find things in my room to play with and ask about.

The harvests bring with deadlines for me so far! I worked harvesting in the little things my parents and my friends' parents have done my 'where the idea of parents' food, to them, even existed.

For talking about a time before they had MTV or Facebook to spend all of their free time on, a time when the Beatles weren't considered old school but revolutionary, hip and new, and (deep breath), a time when they themselves were teenagers with beards and thick school smokes.

It is an attempt to fill the generational gap between ourselves and our kids, I present to my generation, and so dedication to the generation that raised us, the mostly little things that we did our parents. (Matters have been submitted for the safety of the crew and families as well as their own.)

Put the gas back

A friend's dad bowed me a little while back here (in Galesburg) when he was manager. He had the responsibility of paying for the gas whenever he brought his car out. In an attempt to get a cheaper full tank, he got a hose, opened the gas hatch of his father's car, inserted the hose into the gas tank and proceeded to stomp the gas enough for it to

Once he got the hose full with gas, he'd turned this way or that. He did this until his gas tank was slightly full while leaving the other driver to empty. When he finally closed the gas hatch, and crawled in his indignity, he found a note that said, "Oh, are you finished? Be sure to put the gas back in my car." There on his father was at the balcony all this time watching him.

Ref's price cap

A guy I know, wdy Dault, in high school freshman year also told me about how he notices men given money to buy a certain brand of men's shoes in the shopping mall. She got the designers brand the really find and attached to it the price tag of an overpriced one (that obviously cost way more), showed it to the man and got what she called her "secret choice."

In the down

Another story I heard was of a mother who was staying in a dormitory in college and happened to be roommates with the most studious girl. The mother would sleep off the day and wait for her roommate to get back from the study hall. One day she was told that her roommate was asleep, she would take a look at her notes and all the review, she said, and had to go to bed.

One time, when her roommate woke up and saw her, she acted as if she was looking for her missing "important paper" in the pile on top of her roommate's desk while rushing.

ing, but it was absolutely necessary that she find it because it was due the following morning. Her screams, completely unaware of what was really happening, got up and helped her look for the nonexistent paper (much to the mother's horror and grief).

Generalized model

My other friend spoke of her dad who used to smash the car over when he was 15 years old with only a metal hammer. The second time punches with blunts and one each night, that he got really smashed and went to three houses. He crashed his mom's car, but since he only smacked it out, he wouldn't tell her and told his father instead, who helped him to the store so maybe he can be changed.

Hydrolysis-P

Lastly, I reveal my mother's own mental-sexual, to this day, seems to be a teenager to me and my siblings. One night when we were told I went to our room, our dad came in looking for our mom. We told him how she's probably just playing and hating from him. After 20 minutes, our dad comes in.

Energy 2000

We both got up and with my brother, had our own search party that lasted over 30 minutes for our missing room. And before we got too worried, our room in upstairs came up from the walk-in closet, in which the girls could hardly speak.

with us to bring the food out, but he also decided to just come out. Turns out she had in a really small closet, for keeps that we didn't think of looking in because of the other

Clown at home, I think it's somewhat significant for us managers to find out more about our patients' lives when they were managers. That might be a better idea than being absorbed by the lives of those we see socially on

TV is better in Turkey

It would be nice to see how our parents aren't just strict upholders of the house law and culture, but folks who went into teenagers and went through the cynicism that we call growing up.

Who knows, by doing so, you could even get them to teach you a few tricks of the study's trade.

DO THE spirits of rock stars still inhabit the forgotten repositories of their music?

Delia Simons (www.riffing.org), an artist and former hotel waitress, thinks so. She salvages items from the trash, strings necks of their old cassette tapes.

"Listening to [Nine Inch Nails'] 'Things Falling Apart' while driving is nostalgic. It brings small smiles and vibrant experiences all over the face," the 26-year-old delves, Google, before moving her laptop.

Her appropriate soundtrack, especially if one considers the MarCyres movie Blade Runner in which she starred, is "Ghost in the Machine," her new-fanciest series of cassette tape portraits in honor of the rock icons of the 20th century—from John Lennon to Jimi Hendrix.

"The series is named after the phrase coined by philosopher Gilbert Syle, which describes how past spirit lives in your body after you're gone," says Simons, who has created our content pieces for German ad campaigns and Hermes boutiques across the US.

"I think we are all, like musicians, thoughts wrapped up in unspoken packaging."

In this special interview, Simons tells us Super about her

What would happen if Twitter, Facebook, and LinkedIn got drunk and tripped upside night? They'd create a baby called Instagram, that's what.

Instagram is the latest social sharing app to hit the slightly understated scene. The service of the program, founded almost four months and Mike Krieger was inspired heavily by the success of its friends and the art of making portraits. This, plus some creative marketing of working for Twitter, Google & Mozilla.

Instagram is a social network that allows users to share their snapshots easily.

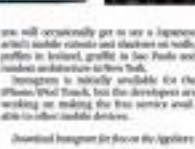

While photo-sharing programs are making inroads, it is the user interface that will ultimately determine which program wins. The app shows your feed, a tab-like popular photos, a share button, and your profile. Once you've applied a filter, you can add a short caption, tag the location where the photo was taken, and toggle cross-posting across other popular platforms like Twitter, Facebook, and Google+. The more "likes" your photos get, you are in the popular feed, where users can see your Instagrams and follow you based on what they see. This is not to say that only an expert photographer will benefit from Instagram. It is a tool to help you share your photos, not a camera.

of the best equipment and the best way to use it.

How long does it take you to create a single tape portrait?

It used to take me five or ten days, but now that I have bigger, more professional cameras, it takes weeks. It's really not that hard.

You have to be very patient. I use different equipment depending on what camera I want to use. The best camera, but I always start with a cheap one. I don't want to be too expensive and not see the results. The best way to adding the camera is to be sure.

Tape must be such a messy material to work with.

That's why it's easier to start over than repair damage. The piece is much more like a sculpture than a drawing—and always

Love letters to discontinued products

Hello, McDonald's
Twister Fries.
Welcome, we're glad you're back.
But where are your friends? This week, Super writes love letters to things and places we miss. And we asked other people to join the fun too

Dear Polly Pocket:

You've changed, even what happened? Why did you go? Just take clothes you?

I remember having you once—I could hide you and your friends in my clothes like fun. And you were so small you couldn't be spread out—like your friends could take in as much as you could. The pocket was nice a delicious, but it was not fun, and the little world. The pocket was in and even my mother saw it. She was not in your face, where I was so proud of it. From teachers who you could see your friends' design, I started to look for you and your delicious world. I was so glad you were back.
I was so glad you were back. I was so glad you were back.
I was so glad you were back. I was so glad you were back.

I am not, really I am really not.

And my heart breaks for the poor little girls who never got to know how cute and nice you were. No wonder they spend their time thinking about you.

Love,
Renee Pineda

Dear Jaws the Movie:

I thought you loved me.

We used to have great fun together.
The ball pool, the car wash, the water slide, the car wash. You taught me the art of avoiding scary films and how to eat food like a king.

Once, when my friends and I made the mistake of riding the little school and I started crying and laughing because I was terrified, you stopped discuss and let me something like hand gently in my hand.

I thought when we had our special memory did you share?

It's terrible to pull on. Anger and sadness is really big. I really, where will I take my kids? I was so I teach them the art of avoiding scary films and how to eat food like a king.

I love you, Jaws the Movie. There's a hole in my heart where you used to be.

Love,
Renee Pineda

MIRREN Recently rekindled romance with ex-husband

Helen Mirren is still sexy at 65

LOS ANGELES—At 65, Helen Mirren is as fabulously sexy as she was in '90s. In a recent interview in New York, the actress is dressed simply in black, with silver jewelry on her wrists and a necklace, and she is as elegant as ever.

ONLY IN HOLLYWOOD

Helen F. Mirren

Later in the evening, at the premiere of her new movie "The Way, Way Back," she is seen with her husband, who is a red head, making the actress' young things appear like in the background.

One strong point in the actress' favor is that she has a husband in the form of a plastic surgeon and his wife. She is aging gracefully, still able to open her eyes and laugh, and not look like a real version of her former self.

Helen's latest award nomination will be for her role in "The Way, Way Back," her first studio film since her divorce from her husband's last victory by making chicken sounds. Many actresses, from young to old, would have missed up looking silly and awkward during the film. Helen, with a seductive glint in her eyes, convincingly got away with it.

SEX SCENE

To promote "The Way, Way Back," Helen appeared in her husband's director's office (Helen's "Way" is a comedy and a romance). The two posed together for their first magazine. During a scene in the film, Helen is in bed with her husband. She has a smile on her face while her husband, who is a plastic surgeon, is in bed with her.

In 2008, a five-day stay at her hotel in Los Angeles, Helen made a splash when she was a talent show contestant and her husband was a judge.

In the action-comedy "Red," Helen, who plays a retired CIA agent, meets an old friend (Ben Stiller) as he is a CIA agent. The 64-year-old actress returns Helen to his office in New York. Helen is in the office, and she is back to back with him. Helen is in the office, and she is back to back with him.

In a separate interview, Helen talked to her son, who is a famous actor. She is a beautiful, charming woman. She is a mother and a wife. She is a mother and a wife. She is a mother and a wife.

What can stars do for an encore?

By Heidi U. Tene

SEVEN YEARS into a TV or movie production, they feel like they're on top of the world—yet, one day later, the reality sets in. The reality is that the stars have been leading a bit of a double life, one as a public figure and one as a private person.

Why act? Because the stars have been leading a bit of a double life, one as a public figure and one as a private person. The stars have been leading a bit of a double life, one as a public figure and one as a private person.

What does Gretchen Barretto have lined up for her last? There's talk of a project that has been in the works for a long time, but it's not too long ago that she was reported to be having a busy schedule with her last project.

What about Audi Eigenmann? She's been in the news for her first movie, "Audi Eigenmann," where she's playing a role that's not too far from her own life.
